Introduction to Stained Glass for Seventh Day Adventist Churches

Seventh Day Adventist church architecture and décor does not follow any given format, style or design and buildings are as varied and unique as the more than half a million church members across America. For older buildings, which may have historical roots in other church denominations, stained glass may be in need of replacement, and Seventh Day Adventist congregants are seeking solutions that are durable as well as lovely. For newer, more contemporary buildings, stained glass that complements the décor and provides a welcoming, spiritual atmosphere for worshippers and newcomers may be desired by members. At Stained Glass, Inc., artists who are masters of design and quality, are expert at custom creating stained glass art to meet specific church needs, whatever they are.

Unique Stained Glass Designs for Seventh Day Adventist churches

Across the nation, visitors to Seventh Day Adventist churches can view some of the most beautiful stained glass art available today. Styles are varied and unique, from traditionally designed ornate depictions of Bible teachings, to Christian symbols centering contemporary geometric designs that are breathtaking and beautiful. Selection committees for stained glass designs destined for more modern Seventh Day Adventist churches often prefer contemporary patterns that create harmonious, peaceful effects for spiritual contemplation and worship. Some examples that are included in the extensive online gallery of Stained Glass, Inc. include:
